About Me

I've just finished my Digital Development degree (web development focus) at the University of the West of Scotland. I enjoy bringing ideas and creations to life, having achieved distinctions in both of my HNC and HND. Within my HNC course, I was given the opportunity with another student to re-design and develop a website for the Scottish Charity, Action Against Stalking. For my final project in my HND, I decided to build a CRUD based website called 'GameTracker.gg' which involved a PHP and MySQL back-end with manual CRUD as well as automated fetching to grow the database where I learned more about implementing APIs into development. I'm keen to grow as a developer, continuing to developing my skills, and bring a fresh set of ideas and enthusiasm to future projects and employment.

Action Against Stalking (AAS)

I worked with another student where I contributed to design, development, and content structure with another student. We decided the colour scheme to match the brand theme of the charity, and created a new website that was more modern and user-friendly, while portraying the charity's values and mission. I was also tasked with designing a brand new logo for the 'Centre for Action Against Stalking' which I designed using Adobe Illustrator, taking inspiration from the charity's main logo, and values.
